Similarly, the BBC's own tragicomic analysis of the Rhodesian insurgency, which remains a cautionary tale for neo-imperialists and the international press, is "about the circumstances, not the reason, for conflict – about the conditions, not the causes". This article in Foreign Affairs is a useful summary of the current issues in the international press. Below is an excerpt from the article, "They Say That Peace Never Comes from a Victory": Few people dispute the fact that the United Nations was created for precisely this reason: to prevent another European war. By drawing a line on the map, a body with veto power in the Security Council, and proclaiming that any state (and, conversely, any government) that transgressed the line was to be punished (as the former Yugoslavia is being punished), the United Nations sought to do away with blood-soaked crises in Europe. Though Americans tend to look at the bloodless European unity, the whole point of the UN system is to stop internal wars. But the number of conflicts raging across the globe, many with sectarian overtones or fuelled by religious or ethnic animosity, is increasing. There are no guarantees that the United Nations can save the world. It certainly could do more. But it is not impossible that, as the century unfolds, the United Nations will be a bigger and more important guarantor of peace than ever. The world is mired in its own mindless political violence; if the United Nations can prevent another European war, perhaps the most violent period of human history will be over. Saturday, 6a5afdab4c

Video Player Add-ons: Custom Icons. Ready Player 1. Review: It's sad that VideoChrome won't support my favorite format. Download the VLC plugin to get around that. VLC is just plain better. Something wrong with the app? Report it here. Comments for VideoChrome We respect your time and want to make sure you have a positive experience. Please use this form to tell us what you think and any suggestions to make the app better.-1 in renal cancer cells exposed to irradiation. This is a result with functional consequences. If NRF-1 is not able to protect renal cancer cells from irradiation-induced oxidative stress, cells may manifest a loss of clonogenicity and undergo apoptosis. Conclusion ===== The present study shows that inhibition of NRF-1 protects renal cancer cells from irradiation-induced oxidative stress and cell death, both in vitro and in vivo. These findings implicate that NRF-1 is a target for radiation sensitization in renal cancer. Competing interests ===== The authors declare that they have no competing interests.
