KeyMacro is a macro recorder that enables you to record any actions you perform on your keyboard. With KeyMacro you can record any key sequence you perform on your keyboard. Record the keystrokes that you perform while working in Microsoft Excel or in any other program you may be using. The recorded sequences can be played back to repeat them, paused to execute them later or stopped to freeze them and review them. Store the key sequences you record to the KeyMacro.vbs file. The recorded file can be edited and saved to file. You can also schedule the recording of specific keys to be performed at any time you want. KeyMacro allows you to choose how often the stored sequences will be executed.

KEYMACRO stores the keys you press and the times of their action in either a.vbs or.dat file. The duration for storing the keystrokes varies. Choose whether the recording file should be saved or closed after the sequence is completed. You can also change the behavior of the macro recorder to customize the stored information. KeyMacro can make macros for Windows batch scripts, Excel scripts, Visual Basic scripts, web pages and web forms. When you run the program, it will prompt you to select the file to be recorded. Then the program starts a timer and starts recording all the keystrokes you press on your keyboard. For example, if you press the Alt key, then the KeyMacro will record all the events you press on the Alt key during the session. You can record one event only by selecting the event you want to record in the event dialog. When the key is pressed, the cursor will flash and you will hear a beep. You can make a key macro to be executed at a specified time. For example, you can make a macro that performs a specific action every time you perform a system reboot. You can also schedule the keystrokes to be repeated at a specified time, for example, every half hour. You can also set macros for closing windows, opening files or creating shortcuts. When you are ready with your key macro, you can export it as a.vbs file and open it with a text editor. You can also choose to save the recording file or close it.
